Educational projects should influence the target groups and change their lives for the better. The Erasmus+ Programme Guide says that: “dissemination and exploitation goals may be to: raise awareness; extend the impact; engage stakeholders and target groups; share solutions and know how; influence policy and practice; develop new partnerships.” That’s why Strategic partnerships projects should pay attention especially to the implementation of their results. The question is how to ensure their durability after the project funding has finished. Which tools to use? There are many different tools but no one knows all of them. The seminar will give Erasmus+ beneficiaries the opportunity to exchange experience in the subject of exploitation, sustainability and dissemination of results. The main aim of the seminar is to create space for participants to exchange both results and methods of improving their sustainability. At the same time, the event will enable participants to gain inspiring knowledge and specific, practical competences.

The seminar will focus more on implementation and exploitation of projects’ final results than on their dissemination. However, knowing the significance of dissemination activities, we will present attractive tools that can be used by beneficiaries during and after the project’s lifetime. For instance, we will offer you a multimedia workshop on recording videos.

The specific goals are:

- a) exchange of experience among participants and contribution from experts on the subject of sustainability, exploitation and dissemination;
- b) exchange of good practices, tools, methods and approaches in sustainability, exploitation and dissemination activities;
- c) preparing recommendations for future Erasmus+ beneficiaries on efficient ways of exploiting and sustaining results.

Expected results:

- a) increased knowledge of efficient tools and methods that can help sustain and exploit project results;
- b) increased competences in effective exploitation and sharing of project results;
- c) creating a community of practices in maintaining implemented results; networking for future joint cooperation activities.
